911blogger.com distributes 9/11 related news. While the blog focuses on alternative 9/11 news they do not seek to force any opinions on the subjects or articles covered, nor do they necessarily advocate the positions stated in the news they cover. It is up to the viewer of the blog to do their own research, and to reach their own opinions. The Primary Goal of 911blogger.com seeks to fill a void in the blogger community by providing a blog centrally focused on 9/11 related news. Breaking through to the blogger community provides an excellent opportunity for 9/11 researchers to reach a wide variety of politically active individuals.

9-11 Research is an ongoing effort to discover the truth about the attacks on New York City and Washington, D.C. on September 11th, 2001. To that end they provide a growing hypertext documentary of the attack and its aftermath, easily browsed archives of evidence, and a body of original analysis based on that evidence. They maintain the website as a public service.

In the past year the the original Scholars group launched a website (ScholarsFor911Truth.org), created a peer-reviewed online journal (Journalof911Studies.com), and maintained a private moderated discussion forum for the participation of all members. We believe we have made inroads in the mainstream media and have helped to "move the ball down field" towards the truth regarding the 9/11 attacks. We look forward to engaging our new members, new group governance and continuing our ongoing dedication to seeking justice.
